

Since broadcast ownership has already consolidated in virtually every market to an unprecedented degree, further deregulation on behalf of communications conglomerates is not only absurdly redundant but unconscionably undemocratic. The current initiative should be rejected.